

pHact or fetish?

THERE'S REASON FOR BEING SAVAGE . . .

"Never heard of pH?" we echoed, rapidly losing faith in the Witch Doctor, "No wonder the savages are savage!"

For civilization is a state of enlightenment in which pH is particularly enlightening. Apart from its medical applications, controlled pH is essential to chemical processes as diverse as papermaking and the manufacture of latex foam. In these and many other fields the accurate determination and correction of pH governs the quality of a finished product and prevents waste. Accurate pH determination is known as Pye pH—it is worshipped by chemists . . . not savages.

Have you a pHobia about pH?

Let's hope not! Because we would like you to write for our illustrated booklet entitled "A Happy Solution". This depicts some of the ways in which research and industry are exploiting pH and describes the robust, reliable, easy-to-use Pye instruments they employ.

USING SP.600 SPECTROPHOTOMETER

A series of detailed methods for a wide range of determinations is being published by Unicam for users of the SP.600 Spectrophotometer. Each method is selected from the literature and tested on the SP.600 by a qualified chemist. The list opposite shows those methods now available.

Enquiries for methods not listed can be considered.

The methods are equally suited to the SP.500 Spectrophotometer.
